Commercial liberalism has played an important role shaping foreign trade of the majority of world economy by adopting the capitalist economic system. In this structure, while developed countries were increasing their production quantities to take more place in foreign markets, developing and least developed countries began forming their work with developed countries guidance. In this study, place of Turkey's foreign trade in the global trade is assessed with international indexes which published by Turkey Statistical Institute also. The World Economic Forum usually holds most of these indexes used in this assessment annually. In addition to that, indexes organized by international organizations are also considered within the scope of the study such as United Nations, International Chamber of Commerce, World Bank. The most important results obtained from the study: It has high performance in the scope of economic fragility, and poor performance in terms of foreign direct investment reliability.