Water is invaluable for human life. In order for human organs to function, there is the amount of water they need to drink / consume. But water does not serve only human beings in this respect. At the same time water means life for man. The water also cleanses the souls of human beings as well as the organs of man. The cleansing of the soul brings peace to man. In literature, the subject is mostly water. Water has sometimes been the first mover for a philosopher. For some philosophers, time has become a friend. History has written water watched many countries fight. There are many gods of water. Water is important for biology, religion, literature, philosophy, mythology, history and many other fields. Because of this reason, water is very important for people. But it is important not only for humans but also for animals. We can compare the importance of water for living creatures to the difficulty of people living without land. If you only want to expose the water to an in-depth study, Philosophy, religion, mythology, history, science and sociology, we can come across a very different.
